MID-YEAR MEETING IN VERMONT

March 5, 6, 7, 2004

GOVERNMENT OPERATIONS 2004: CREATING CONNECTIONS

States are facing fiscal crises. A greater demand for service and decreasing revenues are forcing governments to make critical choices. During these economic difficulties, infrastructure services are usually the last priority. The focus of the mid-year meeting is to provide the states' leaders creative opportunities to manage existing programs during difficult economic times.

MEETING HIGHLIGHTS

- Long-Range Economic Planning
- Privatization
- Labor Relations
- Business Management Principals in State Government Operations
- Media Relations
- Legal Issues

The National Association of State Chief Administrators brings together chief officials from administration and general services from all 50 states to discuss matters of mutual concern and to exchange information and ideas. NASCA members are state executives responsible for providing billions of dollars in internal services, including purchasing, facilities management+, fleet management, printing, information and telecommunication systems, and personnel management. The Mid-Year Meeting provides a great forum for discussion, identifying problems, and developing solutions.
